

The first page is very similar, however, I added a button to take users to the page where they can View and Edit their courses. The Add and Edit courses pages follows a similar layout to what is here. However, I moved Notes lower down on the page, and made three separate fields for the course instructor information so all of those items would be easier for users to find. I consolidated the View and Edit Course pages since they felt redundant. To help implement the notification system, I made it so that notifications can be set on the View/Edit course page only, and I moved the buttons to do so up to where the Start and End Dates are set so they are easier to find. These pages in the app match what is shown with these revisions considered.
